

Drawers for beautiful objects

To express the fineness of Japanese handiwork through furniture, we began by having another look at furniture-making in the good old days that bring back memories. We made a cabinet with many drawers by asking ourselves an essential question of how such furniture should look and how functional it should be.

Without using sliding rails or other modern functional hardware, we limited ourselves to using analog structures. So that users can continue to enjoy the products for a long time by repairing them after several decades even when they are slightly broken.
