

Horizontal table

We consider the cube as a basis for products. We believe that the basis of things exists in cubes and spheres, and cubes contain a universal starting point for every product. With its composition of a simple form and materials, the table can be used for years without becoming boring, changing its expression in various situations. Since the thickness of the legs and tabletop and the compatibility with chairs become more important when a table has a simpler form, we paid the most attention to the dimensions and the balance of the parts.
