

Priest's side table

Through seamless connection of the tabletop, column, and leg, this side table exudes the presence of a unitary mass.

We decided to prioritize the effective use of materials and connect each part by using the advanced technology called tomogane welding. We carefully polish the piece until almost no welding marks can be felt, giving it the finish of a unitary object. When lifted, the piece has a sense of weight and a profound presence that belies its delicate and neat appearance, creating an appeal found only in genuine materials.
