

After Dark, After Dark Candlelight

These two stands are crafted from layers of tinted glass, designed to hold either electric lighting or a candleholder. Their minimal structure highlights the purity of glass—its transparency, its depth, and the way it captures and transforms light.

In the electric version, the bulb itself becomes the centerpiece, casting a soft glow through gray-tinted glass, filling the surrounding space with gentle shadows. The candleholder version reflects flickering flames in warm bronze glass, creating an atmosphere that is intimate and serene.

Available in both floor and tabletop designs, these pieces can stand alone or be arranged together. When several are placed in a row, their colors and lights blend into shifting layers, forming a quiet, poetic presence.
