

Yoshino table

Designed by OEO Studio

The Yoshino table collection captures the essence of both Japanese and Danish influences in appearance and tactile experience, drawing inspiration from Japan's enduring woodworking traditions, particularly miyadaiku techniques that employ no nails.

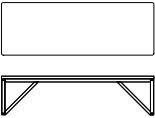

Crafted from exquisite Japanese cedar wood sourced from Yoshino in Nara Prefecture, each table features straight-grain cuts taken from trees that have been meticulously nurtured for over 150 years. The rich soil of Yoshino contributes to the wood's renowned fine, straight grain, enhancing its natural beauty.

The table design pays homage to the forest, celebrating the honest beauty and intrinsic materiality of cedar wood. Key design elements include the joints and connections, along with a simple yet intricate construction that is inspired by traditional Japanese woodworking techniques and architectural styles.
