

Takaoka

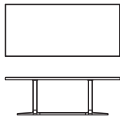

As the name suggests, Takaoka is the first dining table with brass legs created from the casting technique of Takaoka, Toyama Prefecture. We would not be able to create something new without people who carry on the tradition. We take pride in inheriting traditions, but also in generating a new tradition created by integrating an industry rooted in the community and our new ideas.

The edge of the brass legs and tabletop are chamfered to add roundness so that the soft appearance coexists with Japanese elements. Brass's discoloration and corrosion, along with the aging of the wooden tabletop, show the advancement of time. They synchronize with each other to stamp time on the table.
